H. A. MILLER IN AUTO WRECK

Pinned under his overturned eight-cylinder Cadillac for forty-five minutes, while his engine continued to race and his electric horn was jammed down and blowing like a siren, H. A. Miller, well-known rancher of the Covina valley, very narrowly escaped death on Wednesday night of this week shortly after 11 o'clock, on the county road between Puente and Whittier. With him at the time of the accident was Rev. S. J. McConnell, pastor of the Methodist church of Solma, formerly pastor of the Covina Methodist church. Both men were injured, but not seriously.

The escape of the two men will remain one of the miracles of the present age of automobile traffic. "If I hadn't had a preacher along with me, there would have been nothing to it—nothing to it at all," said Miller yesterday. Miller was severely cut and bruised and Rev. McConnell's ankles were injured when he jumped from the hurtling car as it went into the gulch.

The two men were returning from a farm center meeting in Whittier, where Miller had made an address. He is a candidate for the state assembly in this district. The state road is very crooked, having been laid out on the old lines of the original El Camino Real, and there are many right and left angle turns. It was at one of the sharpest of these, a short distance from the junction with the Pomona boulevard, that Miller failed to turn square enough, and the big machine hurtled into the ditch, turning completely over.

Although Rev. McConnell landed clear of the machine, Miller was completely shut beneath the car. He says he was not pinned by the weight of the car, but there was no way for him to crawl out. Seeing that it was going to be impossible to get him out without assistance, Rev. McConnell started off through the darkness to get assistance. Although his ankles were pinning him tightly, he was able to get to a house half a mile away, and there routed out assistance, and got a telephone message to a garage in El Monte, operated by C. H. Brockman, who formerly ran the service station in Covina now owned by T. A. Merritt.

While Rev. McConnell was seeking assistance, Miller dug into the dirt with his hands, in an attempt to open a hole wide enough to allow him to crawl out. He was justified in a fear that his machine would get afire, as the engine was running at high speed and the gasoline might at any time cause an explosion.

Rev. McConnell returned in time, however, and with some rapid shoveling, a hole was made for Miller to crawl through. The men were brought home by Brockman.

Although the cuts and bruises that Miller received are painful, his injuries will not be serious enough to keep him in the house for more than a few days. Rev. McConnell was able to leave last night for his home in Solma.

The Cadillac is understood not to have been badly wrecked, excepting that the top, windshield and steering wheel are demolished.

NYE AT WEST POINT.

Wilbur Nye, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Nye, who is a cadet at West Point Military Academy on the Hudson river, writes of the intensive drill and study that he is being put through. He will take a course of three years. Nye passed his examinations after having been for a year in military service with an ambulance corps at Allentown, Pennsylvania.

BASHORE ON FURLOUGH.

Sergeant Noah Bashore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bashore of Rowland avenue, is home from Camp Cody, New Mexico, this week, on furlough granted just before the unit goes into European service. He does not know just when the camp will move, but there are indications that it will be very soon. He is in a hospital unit.

GRAND MASTER COMING.

Judge William Rhodes Hervey, grand master of Masons in the state of California, will address Masonic members of this district at Lexington lodge, El Monte, tomorrow night. The occasion will be one of entertainment and refreshments. All Masons in the valley are urged to attend.

ZIMMER ENLISTS.

Alpha Zimmer son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Zimmer of the Chaffey rapids southeast of Covina, has passed his examinations, and was enlisted Wednesday in the U. S. naval reserve.

LET US KNOW WHEN HE ARRIVES

Many San Gabriel valley boys are now on their way to France, some in the fortieth division, (Sunshine division) others from Camp Lewis, Fremont, and other camps of the state.

Parents and relatives are urged to let the Argus know as soon as a card is received telling of safe arrival on the other side. The Argus keeps the only record of soldiers and sailors that can be obtained in the valley. We have calls several times a day, asking for the addresses of men in the service.

Keep us informed right up to date. Telephone to us, or mail us one of the forms of the honor roll which you will find on an inside page of this issue.

FORTIETH DIVISION IS TRAVELLING SOMEWHERE

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Trelut returned this week from a trip to San Diego, during which time they had a chance to bid farewell and godspeed to their nephew, Frank A. Trelut, at Camp Kearny. He is in the trench mortar unit. The whole camp, including its commanding officer, General Frederick Strong, is on its way somewhere. Many people in the Covina city and valley are waiting to hear from boys who are thought to be on their way to France. The fortieth division, which is the one now on the move, contains three regiments of California national guardsmen.

FOUR GO FORWARD TO MILITARY SERVICE

Dailey S. Stafford, Charles McCoy, George Bidwell, and Clarence Fabrick were Covina men who went through Covina on the 3:18 car on Tuesday of this week, enroute to training camps. Stafford and Fabrick expect to go to Camp Fremont, Menlo Park, near Palo Alto. A number of friends bade them godspeed as the car stopped for a moment at Citrus avenue.

The office of justice of the peace, held by Dailey Stafford, will probably not be declared vacant, the office still being held technically by Stafford. A justice will be called from another court in civil cases, and criminal cases will be tried in other townships.

BERT LA BATT ORDERED HOME FOR ILLNESS

Friends of Bert LaBatt of Covina will be surprised to learn that he has been invalided home for an extended furlough, after having made several trips as a fireman on board a ship in the American convoy service.

La Batt was taken ill on his last trip, and has been lying in the base hospital at New York. He will shortly be sent to the hospital at Vallejo, where he will be visited by his sister on her way home to Seattle, Washington. He will come to Covina as soon as physicians will allow him to be moved. LaBatt was one of the strongest young men of the valley, a giant in stature, and a boy who had always engaged in the hardest of out-of-door work. It is hoped that Southern California sunshine will work a cure for him.

LIEUTENANT DOUGLAS WRITES OF THRILLING AIR BATTLE IN FRANCE

On the Western Front,
July 10, 1918.

Dear Father:

I wrote you from Cazeaux, but since leaving there June 30, I have been very busy and things have been happening so fast that I have not had time until this afternoon to write a letter. The three weeks in Cazeaux were very tiresome. I learned considerable about aerial gunnery, but our long working hours only gave me an average of six hours sleep a night.

Paris was interesting as usual. It is a beautiful place in the summer, and I had some very good times with four English majors with whom I became acquainted. I was in on two Gotha alerts, but was not inconvenienced. I left the night of July 3, and was very sorry to leave with the city showing every evidence of putting on a big celebration, the next day.

I arrived back at the squadron the afternoon of July 4 in time for dinner and dance that evening. We had a number of nurses and one Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. worker as our guests. It was a very nice affair, but I was a little tired from my all-night ride from Paris.

I was scheduled for a five o'clock a.m. reconnaissance of the sector, but in the morning we did not get off until 8 o'clock on account of a ground mist. We patrolled over the lines and along a good stretch of front, attracting a heavy fire from the Archies. My pilot, Ed Hastings, is a Stanford graduate. At the far end of our section we took a little excursion straight across the German lines, and I noted what I could of the trenches and activity in the German-held towns. The Archies were snapping rather close, so we turned about and started back. We were flying at 1200 meters.

As we turned, I looked up and saw diving at me from the sky a German monoplane. Leaving my gun around, I opened up on it. I tapped Hastings on the head and then took a quick sight at the German. His first burst cut our right aileron control wire, for I noted that Hastings made no maneuvers, but simply dived. The bullets were crashing through our fuselage and the stream of luminous bullets seemed to be pouring into me. I felt some debris flying around my feet. With his approach to about 100 meters I was returning a good fire, and my tracers appeared to be going right into him. Just as he dropped off in a steep slip, I heard another rush of bullets, and looking up, another black and orange demon was swooping on our disabled machine. That was the last I saw of the first Hun, for I now turned my fire on the new attacker. I had the windup with the appearance of the second pursuit plane, for one of my machine guns jammed at the start of the combat, and I knew I had few shots left in my one magazine. I was certainly placing my shots in his plane, and dangerously close, for just as my last shot was fired, he banked steeply and made for the rear.

My first thought was to fix my gun, and I quickly changed magazines and cleared my gun that had misfired. I did not know whether there was another boche in the vicinity or whether the two attackers might return. Neither of these things happened, however. In case the second boche had come at me again he should have had us while I was fixing my gun. Apparently he had had enough. As it was, we were perfectly helpless in the air with our control gone. I believe that the first machine was put out of business, but when number two came along, I had no time to think about watching him.

This takes some time to tell, but actually not many seconds transpire during such a combat. We were now diving into our own lines at great speed. The type of plane we are using is not strong, and we were giving it a tremendous strain at so steep an angle. I realized that our machine was damaged, for we came down within fifty meters of the ground, and looked for a spot to land. We passed by some French battery positions and I waved to the men who had come out of their dugouts. There was no spot to land—nothing but barb-wire entanglements. Hastings showed fine judgment. Our engine was unhurt, so he nosed up, and we climbed to about 1000 meters and steered for our field. He had nothing to steer with but the rudder and we had to slide around in a big circle. We made a perfect landing at our own airfield.

Hastings' first remark was, "Why didn't they get us?" Well, if they had not gained a wholesome respect for us in the first brush, they could have come again and done so. At any rate, we were glad to get off whole in our first aerial combat, which is always considered a big triumph.

When Captain Littauer, our squadron commander, who had flown with the French before we entered the war, saw Hastings and me, he remarked, "So you are living on borrowed time, too, now." He thought we did well to come clear and bring a whole ship back. It was a nice piece of flying to bring the bus home.

I have gone into detail about the fight, but I know you will be interested to hear about it. All our squadrons have been on that front and I was the first observer to get in a serious scrap up there.

We are now on a new sector, and a hot one. We moved on fourteen hours' notice, and came 225 kilometers. We had nearly all our planes on the new field by noon of July 7, and six of the observers came down in a Cadillac. I went up with the captain and tested

APPRECIATION.

To the People of Covina:
I desire to thank my friends for their loyal support in electing me City Clerk for two terms of two years each and Justice of Peace for the last four years. I have tried to the best of my ability to fulfill the obligations pertaining to these offices. I wish also to thank you for your liberal patronage in my law practice and am glad to inform you of the kind offer of Mr. J. H. Ardis, 812 California building, Second and Broadway, Los Angeles, my partner in law, to care for all of my business during my absence in serving you still and our country, that justice and peace may prevail.
Thanking you for your many kindnesses, I am,
Sincerely,
DAILEY S. STAFFORD.

Matthews Is Making Energetic Campaign

One hundred citrus and walnut ranchers of the San Gabriel Valley, together with the business men of Covina, have formed an executive campaign committee for James L. Matthews for supervisor in the first district. All the men on the committee are prominent in that valley, and are giving Matthews their unqualified support.
Mr. Matthews has been a close student of the citrus and walnut industry for many years, in connection with the work as editor of the Covina Argus. He is also one of the best informed men on the subject of flood control and water conservation. He was very largely instrumental in winning the flood control bond election. For years he has been studying county affairs, and says that he believes himself fully qualified to hold the position which he is seeking.
Wherever he goes, in all parts of the large first district he is getting good support from ranchers and business men. He is making no speeches, nor is he holding any meetings, but is seeing the people personally from house to house and from ranch to ranch and from store to store. In the supervisory race Mr. Matthews is the man who is most heard of and talked about, which is a good sign that he is to be a formidable candidate at the primary election on August 27.—Whittier News.

JUDGE RIVES ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY FOR RE-ELECTION

Judge James C. Rives, superior court judge, is a candidate for re-election, and will undoubtedly be returned to office as one of the high men on the ticket. Judge Rives is one of the best-known judges of the Los Angeles bench.

Some of the largest estates on the Pacific coast have been probated through his court during the last decade. He has won the reputation of being a judge of exceptional fairness, and in his particular department of the probate has handled hundreds of highly important cases.

Throughout the San Gabriel valley he has many personal friends. There is probably no doubt but that he will be one of the men to lead his ticket at the coming election on August 27.

MARINES AT ALLIED WAR EXPOSITION

Allied War Exposition in Los Angeles Aug. 1-11 Attracts Crowds. Marines Have Recruiting Booth in Grounds

At last it has come. The Allied War Exhibition of war relics, official war pictures and a great military carnival will take place in Los Angeles at Exposition Park, August 1st to 11th. Acres of park land have been changed in appearance until the thousands of spectators who witness each day's performance will feel that they are actually gazing over the fields of No Man's Land. English, Canadian, French, Italian and Belgium soldiers and sailors will participate in addition to hundreds of American military men. Captured field pieces of all description will be on the grounds for inspection.

Officials in charge state that every one who sees this exhibition goes away carrying the impression that America must do its share to win this war. Los Angeles is fortunate in securing this great collection of war exhibits as the large cities of the northwest used every means to have the show move northward.

The United States Marines will maintain a recruiting booth on the grounds for the entire period. It will be located adjacent to the huge tent covering the official war pictures. The Marines will be pleased to have the parents and friends of boys in the Marine Corps make their headquarters at the Marine recruiting booth.

Covina Argus Subscription Rates to be Raised

After September 1, 1918, the Price Will Be $2.00 Per Year

It is scarcely necessary to remind the people of Covina, city and valley that all commodities of every kind and nature have advanced, some of them two hundred and three hundred percent. In the newspaper business every kind of material has advanced very materially. Especially is this true of white paper, upon which newspapers are printed. All kinds of printing machinery, ink, type, and printing stock are now almost double in wholesale price.

Daily newspapers all over the United States have doubled the price of cost per copy, as is the case with newspapers of Los Angeles city. There are no longer any one cent papers in Los Angeles. Other San Gabriel Valley papers are raising to the $2.00 rate.

Yearly paid-up subscriptions expiring on or before September 1, 1919 will be accepted at the old rate, and we will allow our regular subscribers already paid in advance the privilege of one extra year at the old rate, if paid before the first of September, 1918.

Your home newspaper is one of the necessities of the war. We must meet the conditions that arise from the war.

FUMIGATION WITH "LIQUID GAS"

Reprinted from the South African Journal of Science, October, 1915.

"ANHYDROUS LIQUID HYDROCYANIC ACID FOR FUMIGATION PURPOSES."

By Charles William Mally, M.Sc., F. E. S., F. L. S.

For the destruction of insect pests on fruit trees by means of hydrocyanic acid gas, the usual practice is to generate the gas by the action of dilute sulphuric acid on potassium or sodium cyanide, either (a) dry, or (b) in solution. Either method leaves much to be desired, for it not only takes time and care in preparing the chemicals, but there is also the danger of burning the tents by acid coming in direct contact with them through handling them; or the absorption of fumes of vapors driven off during the generation of the gas may result in the familiar "rotting" of the canvas. The above factors are of special importance in connection with vineyard fumigation for the destruction of the mealy bug, Pseudococcus capensis Brain, because the vines, whether trellised or "bush," must be covered with long, narrow sheets of gas-proof canvas, almost the whole of which is in close proximity to the freshly-generated gas by whatever means it is produced. The space enclosed is very small, and hence only a small amount of gas is required. On account of the shape of the tent, the gas should be liberated at several points to secure a quick and uniform distribution. This means a number of small generators or points of introduction from an external generator. In military work the trouble with acid and cyanide and generators increases the amount of strict supervision necessary, and the time required to do the work. On going into the matter of possible ways of improving on present methods, I decided to try to make use of the fact that the gas readily condenses on being subjected to a low temperature, and produces the anhydrous liquid hydrocyanic acid. The matter was discussed with the Government Analyst, Dr. C. F. Juritz, and later on, with the assistance of Mr. W. W. Brighton-Manning, in arranging the details of a small experimental apparatus, a small quantity of the liquid acid was produced at the Entomological Experiment Station, Rosebank, Cape Province.

The liquid acid proved to be much easier to work with than was anticipated. On testing it with different insects, I came to the conclusion that the gas arising from the liquid diffuses more quickly, and is more violent in its action than that from an ordinary generator. This is probably due to the absence of moisture or other impurities, which may, in the case of generator gas, have a retarding effect. If this holds in practical work it is an important item, for it involves a smaller amount of gas or else a shorter exposure.

Portions of ordinary silk ribbon, muslin and boat-sail drilling saturated with acid showed no ill-effects after a fortnight. This also is of considerable practical importance, for it indicates that the "rotting" of fumigation tents under present methods is due to impurities from the ordinary generator. Whether there is a corresponding reduction in the injury to plants has not been determined.

The dangerous nature of the acid must not be overlooked, although on the whole, with equal care in giving instructions as to its use, I consider that it is no more dangerous than bisulphide of carbon. Under normal trade conditions, it may be possible for manufacturing chemists to produce the anhydrous liquid acid economically, possibly from low-grade materials that are not suitable for fumigation under present methods, and ship it as a commercial article in place of the cyanide and acid. In such case, it will simplify practical work, because the acid, which vaporizes very quickly on exposure to the air, can be injected through suitable openings in the tent or other enclosed space, and thus do away with disagreeable and cumbersome generators and the accompanying byproducts. The practical results should be more reliable than by present methods.

A larger apparatus is being arranged with a view to producing a sufficient quantity for field tests.

CARE OF THE HOME GARDEN.

How to Get Good Results With Either Flowers or Vegetables.

Never permit the surface of the soil in the garden to form a crust. Constant stirring with hand tools or a wheel cultivator should be practiced between the rows and about the plants. This permits air to penetrate the soil, where it facilitates chemical action and bacterial activity, destroys weeds which would utilize large amounts of plant food that the cultivated plants require, and finally it conserves the moisture supply. The hoe and the rake are most generally used for this purpose. This advice applies with equal force to both the flower and vegetable gardens.

Where plants are grown closely in the rows it will be necessary to weed between the plants by hand. Small implements are made for this purpose and are sold at a trifling price.

Cultivating should be done after every rain, but not until the water has drained off and the soil is in workable condition. Working in muddy soil will cause it to form a cement-like mass, in which plant food will be securely locked, and the plants will suffer because it is not released for their support.

As soon as the excess moisture has run off or soaked in or partially evaporated, cultivation should be given to prevent the crust which otherwise will form. A crust formed on the surface of the soil restricts the plants, causes excess evaporation and the loss of moisture required by the plants and prevents access of air.

During dry spells, if the plants give evidence of suffering for the lack of moisture, water should, if possible, be supplied artificially. The usual method in small gardens is sprinkling with a hose. Late in the afternoon is the best time to sprinkle, when a thorough wetting should be given. Small furrows can be opened between the rows of plants and water turned into these ditches from the hose. After the water has soaked in draw the earth back in place.—New York Sun.

THE SOUL OF AMERICA.

Hugo Munsterberg's Own Story of His First Glimpse of It.

In the Century is published the one completed chapter in the unfinished autobiography of Hugo Munsterberg. The first delighted impressions of the young German professor are of especial interest since in the twenty-five years following he strove to interpret Germany to America, America to Germany.

"I remember as if it were yesterday our first Cambridge party. At the threshold of the new academic year Professor Norton and his family had invited some scores of friends to greet the new professors. It had been heralded to us as the chief festival event of the Cambridge season. The quaint, dignified home on the hill was dimly illumined by the mellow light of a few shaded lamps. There was some coffee and some lemonade, a few tiny brown bread sandwiches and, I think, some ice cream.

"I had not dined at home that night in the expectation of the glorious feast, with an abundance of courses and wines as at such evening parties in Germany, and yet when we drove home from Shady Hill my wife and I felt a joy and satisfaction such as few parties had ever given us before. We felt as if we had entered a truly spiritual community where the demand for high thinking and plain living was the life instinct.

"Where was that shallow and gaudy America, that vulgar and trivial America, that corrupt and self seeking America, that noisy and sensational America, of which all Europe was talking? Had no one ever discovered the true soul of the American people?"

Don't Snub the Boy.

Don't snub a boy because of his physical disability. Milton was blind. Don't snub a boy because he chooses a humble trade. The author of "Pilgrim's Progress" was a tinker.

Don't snub a boy because his home is plain and unpretending. Abraham Lincoln's early home was a log cabin. Don't snub a boy because of the ignorance of his parents. Shakespeare was the son of a man who was unable to write his own name.

Don't snub a boy because he wears shabby clothes. When Edison first entered Boston he wore a pair of yellow linen breeches, although it was in the depth of winter.—Irish World.

Quite Experienced.

The pert elevator boy in the big hotel was airing his views to a passenger on the proper conduct of children.

"What do you know about it?" laughed the passenger. "You're not married, are you?"

"Well, no," replied the boy, as he fung open the gate on the top floor for his passenger to step out, "but I brought a good many families up in my time."

Beauty.

A poetess asks, "Oh, where does beauty linger?" We think that we are breaking no confidence when we reply that in these artistic times it generally lingers on the toilet table until the girl puts it on with a brush and a powder puff.—London Tit-Bits.

The Psalter.

Among the instruments of the band which played before Nebuchadnezzar's golden image on the plains of Durai was the psalter, a stringed instrument (Daniel III, 5, 10, 15).

Preparedness.

Visitor—Have your employees had any experience in military training? Employer—Well, most of them have been soldiering on the job for years.—Puck.

ORGANIZATIONS ENDORSE MUSHET FOR CONGRESS

W. C. Mushet, Republican candidate for congress in the ninth district, is receiving a flood of endorsements from organizations of all kinds, from prominent citizens, and leading business men Chief among the endorsements is one from the Credit Men of Los Angeles, signed by the outgoing and incoming presidents of the Los Angeles body and by F. B. McComas, the national president, endorsing Mr. Mushet as a business man.

Another endorsement comes from Bishop Joseph H. Johnson, head of the Episcopal church in Southern California. Mr. Mushet has been secretary of the Credit Men for twenty years, and treasurer of the Episcopal church for a like period.

The patriotic organizations in Los Angeles have endorsed Mr. Mushet because of his strenuous fight to give veterans a percentage preference in civil service.

Reports from all parts of the ninth district to Mushet headquarters in Los Angeles indicate that his candidacy is gaining support.

The Mushet "questionnaire" is proving a winner.

Yosemite Calls the Motorist

El Capitan (left), Three Graces and Bridal Veil Falls Greet the Eye on Entering Valley. Goodrich Road Signs Point the Way.

"With the roads leading into the Valley in good shape, the fishing fine, and the scenery as magnificent as always, Yosemite promises to be as popular as ever this season."

"Yosemite is not only the playground of the State, but of the nation as well. Few places equal it for beauty and out-door appeal. Where else could you find an El Capitan, Half Dome, Mirror Lake, Bridal Veil Falls, Cathedral Spires and Yosemite Falls, all within a few hours from each other.

"Riding over the Wawona Road leading into the Valley, one has no conception of what there is in store for him. Winding among the hills and mountains eight thousand feet above the sea, a sudden curve of the road reveals the wonders of the Valley, and then, riding a mile above the river, one can not help but exclaim at the beauty of the scene.

"Inspiration Point, happily named, is soon reached, and here a vista greets the eye that has no rival on the continent.

"To the right is Ribbon Falls cutting through a rock wall in a white line of tumbling foam. Further on, El Capitan stands commandingly over the entrance to the Valley, and as the eye sweeps the horizon, it takes in the North Dome, Glacier Point, Sentinel Rock, the Three Graces and Bridal Veil Falls.

"Continuing down into the Valley, the motorist has the choice of various fine camps and hotels at which to put up. Days can be spent tramping about the Valley, visiting the various points. At night sleep is sweet in this region for the air is scented with the odor of pines and balsam.

"No motoring education is complete without a trip to the Yosemite. The Goodrich Tire Testing Fleet made the trip last year. Here, as at every other place, the Goodrich casings proved their mettle, and demonstrated conclusively that they the 'Best in the Long Run' for the motorist."

COVINA GARAGE MEN DRIVE TO BIG BEAR

Last Saturday the Covina Garage & Machine Shop Association just finished unloading a car of new Model 90 Overlands. Mr. Bisbee's family has been spending the summer at Big Bear, where they have a very delightful camp, and Frank has been accustomed to visiting them over Sundays, using most any old car that happened to be around. Last Saturday, however, Mr. Webber, sales manager for the garage, suggested that he should take a brand new 90 Overland, drive it up and if he liked it he could just give his check for it when he returned. So Mr. Webber loaded in his family and Frank drove the car. Here is what he says about it:

"I have driven to Bear lake many times in a great many different make cars, but I can say truthfully I have never driven a car that rode more comfortably or made the climb more easily. It was at no time necessary to use low gear, and a good deal of the way was made on high. Coming down we used second and high for compression, very seldom having to use the brakes."

COACH AND MILITARY DIRECTOR EMPLOYED

The Covina union high school has been fortunate to employ the services of Thomas L. Nelson of the University of California to coach athletes and direct the military training.

Mr. Nelson is a graduate of the University of California with B. S. degree, and has had five years' experience in American football, part of the time in the University of Colorado and part in the University of California.

He assisted Coach Christie at the University of California in athletic events. He received his big "C" from both the University of Colorado and the University of California.

Coach Christie informs us that Mr. Nelson was one of his best athletes during the year of 1915-16 in the university, a sprinter, a good student in college and well as in athletics, a whiz among the boys, in a good clean way.

Mr. Nelson is now attending the Presidio military school so as to be able to organize the Covina boys as a member of the state cadets under the direction of the state adjutant general.

With this competent coach, Covina high school is looking forward with much enthusiasm to the coming year.

THE MAN WHO SMILES.

A Covina boy, drafted, and on the eve of his departure for Camp Lewis, came into the barber shop with a cheerful grin, and said:

"Yeah—I'm going to hook up with a big outfit—going to hunt and shoot for Uncle Sam—some boy that old guy—no limit to the number he'll let yer shoot, and he furnishes grub, gun and ammunition."

The story wouldn't be worth much if it wasn't a fact that practically all of the million and a half of the boys hunting and shooting for Uncle Sam are just that happy-go-lucky sort—going in to it with a wide grin and a joke. It's a terrible job to lick a man who keeps smiling.

Hymns of hate never got any nation anywhere. German hate never killed a single allied soldier, and it only burnt out the energy of those who hated. Rudyard Kipling got off on the wrong foot with a savage poem early in the war, and the Tommies spat it out of their mouths. There's nothing in this hating business. Rage blinds the eyes for straight shooting.

And along this line of thought comes also the thought of the nasty taste in the mouth some would-be fire-eating orators leave with the audiences. They fill themselves up with the most loathsome of atrocities, mostly unofficial, and spew them out for an effect. We really have too large a job on our hands as a nation to be listening to the kind of orator who foams at the mouth and recounts hearsay atrocities. There are thousands of authentic cases of atrocities on official record in the Bryce reports and other reports, that can be read with conviction. These hand-me-down atrocities beloved by mediocre speakers do not convince, and they blur the true picture. Men high in office in this state have been repeatedly guilty of this cheap kind of sensationalism.

The Hun in warfare is a loathsome fiend. But let's set that part of it aside for the present until we have licked the everlasting daylight out of him, and then we can talk straight to Germany about these things.

A RIGHT ABOUT FACE.

Before the war it was popular to say that a congressman or a senator who was an orator, was just a hot-air artist. We were very prone to say that all business in congress is done in committees by men of the bullet-head type, who couldn't talk for sour apples, but who were trained business men. The day of the orator had passed, the most of us agreed. It was a popular idea, and like many popular ideas, was entirely erroneous. For the time will never arrive when the trained public speaker will cease to be a tremendous force in moulding public sentiment, and it never was a fact that orators were not useful on the floor of the house, or senate.

If there was an inclination before the war to turn down the orator and elect the quiet committee-worker, that idea has undergone a complete change. For today, the few great orators that this country possess are doing incalculably great work in cementing the people together, uniting them on a common ground for the winning of the war. From the standpoint of propaganda for war, the orators of the United States have accomplished a bigger job than any nation in the war, including Germany. The orators of America killed pro-Germanism in this country. They helped materially to put over the Liberty loans; they have given the people trenchant words and phrases with which to describe the work of the Red Cross.

Incidentally, the committee worker in the houses of congress is somewhat of an impotent member. Nine-tenths of the war legislation is mixed, cooked and served at and from the White House on data furnished by the war department. The committees have largely been relegated to the "sign-on-the-dotted-line" category. Things have changed. In fact, pretty nearly everything has taken a flop since the war began.

THE FOURTH LIBERTY LOAN.

Every man in this city and valley must search deeply into his own soul during the next month, and decide for himself just how large a contribution he can make to the fourth Liberty loan. It is coming very soon now.

Just how large a contribution can be obtained from the men who work by the day and week is conjectural. These laboring men, in the field and in offices, are paying for Liberty bonds on installments now—some of them carrying a bond for each of the three previous loans. The cost of groceries, milk, clothing, and the things which go to make up actual living essentials, is twice what it was five years ago. Although wages have advanced somewhat, they have not by any means kept up with the advance in living. We are speaking of this portion of Southern California, where there are no munitions or automobile factories.

The amount of this valley's apportionment in the fourth loan is to be twice what it was in the third loan, if the present program is adhered to. This means that the men and women who actually have the money, or the credit, must assume the larger portion of the allotment, in fact most of it.

Some ranchers have made small fortunes in the last year. Others, as is always the case, have not made money, or have been so deeply obligated that all money received has been paid out. But we all know that there are many who can afford to subscribe liberally. Upon them must rest the major part of the load.

This is the time to be thinking about this question—right now, before other plans are made. The gigantic fourth Liberty loan is coming, and the people of the valley must meet it—they will meet it.

LOCAL WOMAN WILL REGULATE SUGAR

Mrs. E. V. Rice of West San Bernardino road, who is the authorized chairman of the woman's committee for food conservation, has been granted authority by the federal food commission to issue permits for the second purchase of sugar for canning purposes only. This departure from the strict regulations issued to grocers has been permitted in order to prevent the fruit going to waste.

The latest directions issued to the grocers are as follows: In order definitely to check all sales of sugar both for canning and household use, grocers must keep a loose-leaf record of the name and address of each purchaser for sugar for household use and forward it to the local food administration once a week. No grocer is permitted to sell more than two pounds of sugar to a customer in the city, and not more than five pounds to those living in the country. A second purchase of twenty-five pounds for canning purposes can only be made by securing a permit from the local food administration.

The Food Administration has the following to say about the wheat situation:

"Strict conservation of wheat should not be relaxed. Wheat will continue to be needed abroad, and we must lay up reserves for emergencies on both sides of the Atlantic."

CITY WILL CONFORM TO LIGHTING RULE

Orders from the United States fuel administrator, H. A. Garfield, restricting the use of electricity for all unnecessary lighting, were received by the Southern California Edison Company on Monday, August 5th, and immediately put into effect. The instructions are subsequent to the general order of the president of the United States authorizing the fuel administrator to conserve in every possible way the use of fuel for war purposes.

As locally applied, the order designates Monday and Tuesday of each week for the restriction of public lighting in the cities, villages and towns to the amount necessary for safety. Cluster lights for the purpose of display or decorations are ordered reduced to such proportions of the cluster as are necessary for safety. The illumination of advertising ornaments, signs and external ornamentation of buildings is also ordered discontinued on Mondays and Tuesdays, as is also the use of lights for illuminating shop windows.

JACK PICKFORD COMING ON MONDAY NIGHT

The Star theater will start the coming week on Monday and Tuesday with Jack Pickford in a story, "The Spirit of '17." This is a real red-white-blue story of patriotism. Jack himself, as most know, is in the army now. The picture was made last year.

On Wednesday and Thursday an old favorite comes back to the theater, Francis X. Bushman, in a comedy-drama, "With Neatness and Dispatch." The Lonesome Luke comedies are run on these nights.

On Friday and Saturday nights Doug Fairbanks will appear in the comedy, "Mr. Fix-It." With this picture will be a film of scenic travels.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Finch and Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Reed left for a week's stay at Big Bear lake Wednesday morning.

A Prosperous Community

A prosperous community is the result of a great many people in the location being prosperous. If every farmer and salaried man or woman would place in the bank a part of their incomes and if every wage earner would deposit a part of his wages, prosperity for this community would be assured. No financial difficulties could come that would injure the local credit. The bank is the best place for money; because it is organized and equipped for the safe-keeping of money.

BRET HARTE'S FORTY-NINE STORY INTERPRETED BY MARY PICKFORD

MARY PICKFORD in "M'Liss"
An AMTICRAFT Picture

Bret Harte's story, "M'Liss," a romance of the gold mining days of '49 in California, will be interpreted in pictures by Mary Pickford at the Star theater tonight, tomorrow night and tomorrow afternoon, the matinee being at 3 o'clock.

Covina people of the city and valley will not make a mistake in seeing this picture. In the first place, the story is one of the most famous written by this early California writer, and has been filmed for pictures far up in the redwood forests, and along the brawling streams of the high Sierras. Anyone who has even seen or read about the Feather river country will be glad to see the scenic effects, entirely aside from the story. It is as good as a vacation to see these pictures of the California wilds.

The story itself is peculiarly well fitted to Mary Pickford. It calls for a sprightly and pretty girl who is the idol of the rough mining camp. Unlike other pictures that have been filmed of mining camps, this story is clean, and at the same time does not lack for a world of action.

Montaville Flowers Gives Address Here

"The Case Against Germany" was the title of the address delivered last Saturday night in Covina at the high school grounds by Montaville Flowers of Monrovia, who is one of the best orators now in politics on the Pacific coast. He is a candidate for the nomination for congress in the ninth district on the Republican ticket.

The audience was very small, owing to a lack of proper advertising, and because of the intense heat of the day. The speaker was introduced by Mayor R. A. Welch.

That Germany deliberately planned two wars, one on land and one on the sea, which were to follow each other, was the statement of the speaker, and that she utilized her naval and military force as a means to bring about a wider German dominion at the expense of other nations. He reviewed Germany's history during the last forty years.

It is probable that Mr. Flowers will return here to speak again before the primaries, when an effort will be made to get out a large audience, as there is question but that he is one of the orators on the coast.

Fresno city is growing by leaps and bounds. It is the most important inland city in the state.

TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS.

First Find the Kind of Work to Which You Are Best Suited.

A friend of mine who is as good a man in his line as anybody in the United States stood in my office a few days ago and said a surprising thing. I had been complimenting him on one of his latest achievements. His face lighted up as he remarked: "Of course I got a lot of money for that job; but, between you and me, I'd do these things for nothing if I couldn't get anybody to pay me for them. I'd rather do them than eat. It's a shame to take the money. Don't give me away, or they'll be asking me to cut down my price, and I'll be doing it."

That sounds like bunk. But wait a minute. Think clear through the proposition. This man will never be cutting down his price at all. It is exactly the other way around with him, and he knows it. The truth is that his income goes on rising, because those he works for keep bidding for his services. What he meant was that he has found the secret of progress and enjoyment—namely, a field of activity to which he is suited and in which he is so interested and happy that he works as if he were playing. No wonder he performs miracles!

Naturally he is glad to have the large sums of money he earns. They are a sort of crude measurement of his efficiency. They show in a rough way how other people estimate his value. But the main point is that he has found his niche and that he concentrates on his job for days and weeks at a stretch. All his thought is concerned with what he can put into his work, not what he can get out of it. Lucky man!

The moral is simply this: Don't fake for years and years an interest in something that bores you. Don't pretend all your life, for the sake of fancied appearances, to enjoy some form of work that you really dislike. Of course you should give yourself a fair trial at a job before throwing it up, because often a man learns to like something that he didn't like when he set out. But you know what I mean—don't keep at it indefinitely. Quit and try something else. Cut and run before it is too late.

The acid test to apply to your job is this: If you had money enough to live on would you stay at it without pay? If you don't love it that much hunt for another—that is, if you are young and free from the responsibilities and obligations which govern older men. The greatest successes of the world are "crazy" about their work. Look at Edison. Look at Pasteur. How those men enjoy their jobs! Can anybody imagine that they love money more than work? And yet each, because of his jealous devotion to his work, has been richly paid in money. Both men are great artists. They have found what they wanted to do and stuck to it. Treat yourself as if you were an artist. To a certain extent you probably are in some line if you will avoid shams and give yourself fully to your job.—American Magazine.

OUTPUT OF FERTILIZER PEAT ALMOST DOUBLED

The largest and most successful branch of the peat industry in the United States is the manufacture of fertilizer and fertilizer filler. All the plants that produced peat in 1917 also manufactured peat fertilizer or fertilizer filler, the output of which amounted to 92,263 short tons. This quantity is greater by 44,157 tons, or almost 92 per cent, than the production in 1916, and exceeds by 40,530 tons, or about 78 per cent, the record production in 1911.

The average price received for peat fertilizer in 1917 at the point of consumption was $7.14 a ton, a gain of 14 cents a ton over the average price received in 1916. The gains made in 1917 were sufficient to make the total value of the output in that year, amounting to $658,500, exceed the value of the output in 1916 by $322,496, or nearly 96 per cent.

The most striking feature of the peat-fertilizer industry in 1917 was the extensive use made of peat as a culture medium for nitrifying and other bacteria in the manufacture of bacterial fertilizer. Of the total quantity of peat fertilizer and fertilizer filler produced in 1917, 26,850 short tons, or about 29 per cent of the entire output, valued at $256,000, was bacterized.

The rapid growth of the peat-fertilizer industry in the United States in 1917 was due mainly to the increase in the acreage of land tilled, the more intensive cultivation of crops, the shortage and high price of commercial fertilizer, and the increased application of bacteriology to soil fertilization.—From U. S. Geological Survey Bulletin.

PRESBYTERIAN YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD CONFERENCE

A young people's conference of the Presbyterian churches of the Los Angeles presbytery has just closed a very successful session at Alamitos Bay. The session lasted from July 29 to Aug. 5th, and the attendance on Sunday was about one hundred fifty. Regular classes were conducted and those who attended the whole time and completed the class work were given certificates. Rev. Paul G. Stevens, at one time pastor of the Presbyterian church in Covina, was the director of the conference, and some of the distinguished men of the churches in Southern California were present and delivered addresses. Mrs. Dora Shearer of the Presbyterian church of Covina attended from Wednesday until Sunday, and Mrs. M. M. Coman, with the Misses Dorothy Kaiser, Dorothy King, and Rose Fraijo, were there over Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday evening after the evening session there was a camp fire on the beach and a marshmallow roast.

SPECIAL MEETING OF YOUNG PROPOE'S SOCIETIES

This is a return visit for the assistance the young people's societies of Covina have given in the meetings at the mission at various times. There will be a specially interesting program and it is expected that Mr. Liddecoat's daughter, Mary, will be present and sing. The meeting will be at 6:15 p.m. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

CANTONWINE IS TRAINING IN TRENCH MORTAR UNIT

Clarence K. Cantonwine, son of A. Cantonwine of Covina, is now at Camp Eustis, a new camp near Norfolk, Virginia, where he is taking a special course in the handling of trench mortars. The army is training special units for this work. Cantonwine was sent from San Pedro, where he has been with the coast artillery since last August.

In a letter to his father this week he says that he expects to complete the course in about two months, when it is expected that his unit will be sent over.

BAILING OUT A CANOE.

What to Do in Still or Rough Water When the Craft Is Swamped.

In reasonably still waters one man or boy can bail out an upset canoe. There are two good methods—rocking it out and shoving it out. In the first swim around to the stern of the canoe and get out the water inside, rocking from side to side so that it flops out at each reverse. As soon as enough is out to give her a good freeboard get aboard over her stern and dash out the rest with your hands.

Shoving the water out also depends on the momentum of a body of water. Swim astern and, grasping the stern breasthook, give her a smart pull toward you. The water will slop out in a torrent over her bows. Then shove away from you with all your strength, and the water will come rushing aft and slop out over her stern. Keep this up until about half emptied, says a writer in Boys' Life, then get aboard over her stern and dash out the rest with your hands.

I do not believe that a single man or boy can bail out a swamped canoe in a heavy blow. Stick to her, for she is your only hope, and get overboard all the heavy duff. If the water is not too cold get out some twine or fish line and buoy mark rifles, axes, etc., by lowering them to the bottom and tying a floating duff bag at the surface anchored by the gun. This leaves the canoe free. Right her and get into her still awash.

Watch your chance to get water out and do so at every opportunity. Sooner or later she will drift ashore and if you feel yourself getting numb rest your head on bow or stern breasthook and keep quiet. If the water is cold act quickly. Heave out all duff, right the canoe and get in and bail steadily. You may beat out the waves and at least will keep exercising while you drift to the shore.

CHROMIUM STEEL.

A Metal That Will Neither Rust Nor Become Tarnished.

Cutlery made of steel that neither rusts nor tarnishes is now sold in all first class shops. "The new steel," says the Scientific American, "was discovered in England, but is now being made in the United States and sold as table cutlery. It is what is commonly called an alloy steel—that is, it differs from ordinary steel in that it contains a special element or metal.

"In this case it is chromium, which is mainly responsible for bestowing the stainless and rustless properties. By incorporating from 12 to 13 per cent of this metal in mild carbon steel the new properties are obtained.

"An English metallurgist in gathering together some rods of steel which had lain a long time in his laboratory, noticed that while most of them were badly rusted or stained, a few were as bright as when originally made. This led to the discovery and manufacture of the steel.

"The new steel is more expensive than the old, which usually appears in the every day table knife. Its advantages and lasting properties, as well as its appearance and the convenience arising from its use, more than offset the extra cost. The fact that it does not tarnish, stain or corrode augments its value decidedly. It is supplanting not only the old steel cutlery, but also the plated. Its possibilities, however, are by no means limited to cutlery. One can readily imagine to what countless uses a stainless and rustless metal can be put."

Too Much Meat as Bad as Too Little.

"Too much meat is as bad for the body as too little," we are told in the Woman's Home Companion. "During the digestion of meats, fish and eggs, acids are formed. In order to prevent the accumulation of too much of this acid in the system it is necessary to eat also fresh vegetables and fruits, which have properties that neutralize the acids formed by the meat. This is one reason why meat and potatoes are usually served together. It is safer to have too little meat than to eat too little fruit and too few vegetables."

Use Distilled Water For Battery.

In the Woman's Home Companion C. H. Claudy, the automobile expert, says: "There is only one kind of water to use in a storage battery; that is distilled water. No other water of any character will do. The animal and vegetable matter, as well as mineral, which is in all other water is very injurious to a storage battery. Only distilled water, which can be bought from druggists in bottles, should ever be used to replace water evaporated from a storage battery."

Tired Eyes.

When the eyes are tired and dulled use either an eye lotion bath or one made of water to which a little borax powder has been added. Keep the eyes open in the water. This both strengthens and brightens them. Knitting the brows when reading or working is a habit certain to produce disfiguring lines on the face.—Pittsburgh Press.

His Cruel Critic.

"I shall now give out the effect of distance," he said to her, and he sang so low as to be scarcely heard. "A little further, please," she said cruelly, and he picked up his voice and went away with it into the chilly night.—Chicago News.

Commissioned Officers.

An officer never "enlists." He is commissioned by the president of the United States. Only private soldiers, including corporals and sergeants, can "enlist."

BATTLE IN AIR

out his wireless on the new field, and we were ready for work. There was little sleep that night, as we were back on the alert early in the morning. However, the Hun did not start his expected show, and we waited until evening and three planes went out on a reconnaissance of the sector—something different than I had seen before, because there are no real trenches and it is more or less open warfare. The captain and I led the patrol and we kept a perfect formation. No one seems enthused about us working on this sector with our type of machine. The Hun flyers are very active and they have their best on this front. We are going to get good ships very soon, possibly this week. In the meantime, we will work with what we have.

We just got our officers' mess started this noon and have taken up our quarters at an old farm. Our residence is an old barnlike structure with oak beam ceilings. In fact, the barn is run in connection. However, as the French say, "This is war." For the first few days we lived at a hotel in a town near here. Last evening I was early in for dinner, and with a couple of other genial souls we took a look at an old church of the twelfth century and a beautifully preserved manor house of the thirteenth century that has been in possession of the same family all the time.

This is a rich part of France. The wheat crop is excellent, and it is a beautiful farming country. I hate to think of it being occupied by the enemy.

When I came back through Paris I received a number of letters and a lot of Arguses. Thank Mr. Matthews for sending them. I have a lot of letters unanswered now, and I don't know just when I will have time to do much writing. I owe Gordon a letter, but will not get it away today. There is no telling just how busy we are going to be.

One observer on this front had a miraculous escape from a boche who got on his tail, and when both his guns jammed, was shot full of holes. One bullet creased his forehead, another his chin, and another took a button off his undershirt. His share of luck.

I send my best regards to all my friends. Love to Aunt Nell.

Your loving son,
HOWARD.

O.K.—Howard T. Douglas, 1st Lt. Inf., V. S. R.

REPUBLICANS OF THE NINTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT:

Will you by division of your votes defeat all Republican candidates for the office of Representative in Congress as you have at two elections past?

Why not concentrate on the only candidate that has any chance of receiving the same Radical Dry votes as the present Prohibition-Democrat incumbent?

Other good Republicans (Dry Republicans too) have been unable to swing the Dry vote in this District. It will be the same old story both at the Primary in August and at the General Election in November unless you concentrate your votes on

SAMUEL W. ODELL, THE "DRY" REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE.

How may he win those votes more surely than other candidates? It is a fair question. Here is the answer:

Mr. Odell has proven his Prohibition principles by his acts. Other candidates may now claim to favor Prohibition, but the voices of none of them were heard either on platform in the Ninth District or in the press talking or writing for California Dry or for National Prohibition until this Congressional campaign opened.

What of the California Dry campaign in 1914?

Mr. Odell was President of the California Dry Federation, giving his time for months in office and on platform without pecuniary compensation. The Prohibition party friends of Mr. Randall were then collecting money to push his campaign for Congress. They collected thousands of dollars which ought to have gone into the treasury of the California Dry Federation and spent it advertising him as the "Dry" candidate and thus materially crippled the Federation.

What were the other candidates doing for California Dry? Not a word was heard from any of them and so far as the Dry records show, not a dollar was given by them for the California Dry campaign, but, on the contrary, one of them has been Secretary of the California Protective Association, which fought the Drys to a finish, and the others were attending to their private affairs.

What of the California Dry campaign in 1916?

Again Mr. Odell as chairman of the Campaign Federation, Southern Division, for the Dry work gave months of time without pecuniary remuneration. The other candidates were doing nothing for California "Dry."

What of the Dry campaign in 1918?

At the Fresno convention of the United Temperance Forces in June, Mr. Odell urged not only a campaign for Ratification of the Sheppard Amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing for National Prohibition, but also that a bone-dry measure be placed on the ballot in California.

What of the other candidates?

They were not at the Convention. They were not even heard from until they became candidates for Congress.

"By Their Works Ye Shall Know Them."

If this is not a sufficient answer, read the following testimonial from the Anti-Saloon League about Mr. Odell's services in courts to defeat the efforts of the Wets who attacked various Dry Laws:

CALIFORNIA ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Division Superintendent
S. T. Montgomery
Suite 603 Merchants Trust Bldg., 207 S. Broadway
Los Angeles, California

State President: Hon. A. J. Wallace

State Superintendent: D. M. Gandier

Supt. of Woman's Work: Miss Ida A. Green

Mr. S. W. Odell, Attorney at Law, Boston Building, Pasadena, Calif.

April 9, 1918.

My dear Odell:

Your success in obtaining for the people of Venice, Needles and Watts opportunity to vote on their local liquor question when the liquor interests tried to prevent them from so doing, puts the temperance forces of the state, and particularly those of Southern California, under new obligation to you.

The Headquarters Committee of the League greatly appreciates the large service you so efficiently rendered, both in these cases and also in maintaining the validity of the ordinance recently adopted at Santa Monica.

Permit me to add my own personal expression of gratitude and to say how much we all appreciate the splendid work you have done in uniting and making effective the temperance forces of California during recent years.

Gratefully yours,
D. M. GANDIER.

THE REPUBLICAN LOYALTY LEAGUE OF THE NINTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT URGES ALL REPUBLICAN VOTERS TO CONCENTRATE THEIR VOTES ON HIM

(From circular letter issued July 15).

"To Republican Voters of the Ninth Congressional District.

"This League is a voluntary association of Republicans whose sole purpose is to elect a loyal and genuine Republican to be Representative in Congress for the Ninth District, instead of the incumbent, Mr. Randall, whose war record as well as politics are unsatisfactory.

"This League was organized on the day when National Chairman Hays was at Los Angeles, and its membership roll comprises several hundred of the leading Republicans of the District of all elements, and is rapidly growing. It is the only organization in the district whose sole purpose is to elect a Representative in Congress.

"After waiting until all candidates for the office had announced themselves either publicly or privately, the officers of the league called a meeting in Burbank Hall, Los Angeles, July 13.

"After considerable discussion, the choice, by almost unanimous vote, fell on Samuel W. Odell, of Pasadena.

"It is our opinion that this choice will be ratified by the voters. Mr. Odell was first to announce his candidacy and has been endorsed by hundreds of leading Republicans of the district and county, some of them men of state-wide and national reputation.

"It was the purpose of the league to endorse not only a genuine Republican and a man of ability, but one who would be likely to poll the largest vote. Beside the support of leading Republicans above mentioned, Mr. Odell will undoubtedly be strong with the same-radically "Dry" element that has elected the incumbent twice. Having held the offices of the President of the California Dry Federation and Chairman of Executive Dry Committees, as well as being one of the State Executive officers of the Anti-Saloon League—the most powerful temperance organization of the district, which is three-fourths bone-dry as to its votes—he will be a powerful candidate.

"But while "Dry," Mr. Odell is not a man of one idea only. He has always believed that the Dry issue was best promoted by non-partisan efforts. He is a Republican thoroughly imbued with the Republican doctrines. He is a lawyer of thirty years' experience, a college graduate, holding the degree of LL.B., a writer and a platform speaker of much experience, and a ready debater. He is one hundred per cent American, being government agent for a Pasadena Exemption Board without pay, having two sons in the army, and being himself a member of the Home Guards of Pasadena.

"From every standpoint we have in Mr. Odell the strongest candidate to prevent Mr. Randall from securing the Republican nomination. Let the slogan of every loyal Republican be:

CONCENTRATE!
REPUBLICAN LOYALTY LEAGUE
9TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT."

PLATFORM

Winning the war; a victorious peace; punishment of atrocious murderers; a reunited Republican party; progressive legislation to meet the needs of a rising civilization; a Dry State, Nation and World; systematic improvement of labor conditions; protection of American industries; improvement of our harbor; promotion of the interests of the district; equal suffrage and equal rights; against child-labor; against profiteering and for preparedness—these are some of his platform planks. He voted and worked for flood control.

Mr. Odell is a student of sociology, a lecturer, a teacher, and a historian. He is a regularly admitted pension attorney as well as a lawyer practicing in all State and Federal courts. This legal training, coupled with his sympathy for all moral and social uplift movements, ought to fit him for service in law-making.

ENDORSERS

More than one thousand prominent Republicans, among whom are a former Lieutenant-Governor, a former Congressman, State Senators and Assemblymen, Mayors, Commissioners, Judges, Editors and officers of Civic Bodies, Ministers of the Gospel, Anti-Saloon League and W. C. T. U. notables, have signed their intention of supporting this candidate. Their names may be seen at the Headquarters of this Committee.

Concentrate Your Votes on Samuel W. Odell.

Sincerely,
ODELL CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.
